Gleanings Here, There and Everywhere, But Mostly In Oxford County

BY LEONARD B. CHAPMAN.
LOST AND FOUND.

A year and a half ago I received from Mr. Hiram Twitchell of Bethel a letter containing the address of Mr. Hiram A. York, which I needed at that time, who was then residing in Lewiston at the age of 80 years but before I used the facts the letter disappeared and its hiding place was not discovered till recently.

I met Mr. York a very few years ago and found he had an excellent memory. He worked at home and mill building when a young man, not only in Oxford but Aroostook county several years. Mr. Hiram Twitchell served an apprenticeship with Mr. York. Mr. Twitchell's letter condensed is as follows, leaving out the references to Mr. York:

"I learned my trade with Mr. York, going with him when 18 years of age. I am now 78. (This was in November of 1912). I am the last of the Twitchell voters of this town. I am the son of Andrew Twitchell. My name is not in Dr. Lapham's history of Bethel. I bought the land where Abraham Russell's barn stood upon the southern side of Main street near the railroad depot, took the building down and worked it into the barn and all of the house I constructed for myself upon the premises. This was fifty-two years ago. When I was taking down the barn Mr. John Oliver came along and told me his father built it sixty-six years ago. The timber and boards were all as sound as on the day the barn was built.

"There were when I was married fifteen Twitchell families in Bethel, and now there is, as I have stated, only one voter left. (Signed) Hiram Twitchell."

A John Oliver united in marriage with Miss Esther Russell, a daughter of Abraham, and their third child, born Jan. 13, 1825, was named John, who departed this life at Bethel this last spring. If this was the John who knew the age of the Russell barn he was a grandson of Abraham Russell, the original settler upon the railroad depot region of the town.

The history of Bethel does not mention the matter of burying grounds, ancient or modern.

In 1917 the town of Bethel voted to fence the burying ground upon Alexander P. Wentworth's farm. Who can point out to the public through the Citizen the location of this farm and give facts relating to it and occupants and burying ground?

"BETHEL'S NEW CEMETERY." Under a heading as above indicated, upon the 14th day of June, 1913, there appeared in print an item of news that read as follows:

"We made a short visit to the cemetery this week, for the first time, and was very agreeably surprised at the beauty of the situation. It will be one of the most beautiful cemeteries in this part of the country when the lots are all graded, fenced in and other wise ornamented and decorated.

Most has been done, and much remains yet to be done to show all its beauties. Its natural scenery and advantages are not surpassed anywhere."

From the above compared with the present date, allowing that a year had passed when the foregoing was written, fifty-two years—the generations—have passed since what was then called the "New Cemetery" was opened to public use as a repository for the earthly remains of the departed and during this time the voters of the fifteen Twitchell families of Bethel, with a single exception, have passed beyond the veil. The fact furnishes much material for silent and educational thought for the living.

The following facts, in the same language as now used in this connection, appeared in print May 20, 1819, in a Portland paper, and were sent from Andover Me. To make accurate double sure of correctness in transferring I have clipped the items with dates and here attach it.

BACCALAUREATE

SERMON

By Prof. W. B. Mitchell to Class of 1913, Gould's.

The class of 1913, Gould's Academy, were very fortunate in securing William B. Mitchell, Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory in Bowdoin College, to deliver the annual sermon to the graduating class.

Professor Mitchell's clear and forceful way of talking held the attention of all throughout his very interesting and able discourse.

Professor Mitchell took for his text these words from the Third Chapter of Philippians: "But this one thing I do." He emphasized the importance of every young person's having a purpose in life. "It would be a sad sight," he said, "to see a ship upon the sea well-built and well-kept, staunch enough to cross oceans, to aid in bringing together the products of great nations, to perform a great mission, but with no eye upon the compass and no hand upon the wheel driven hither and thither by every wind that blows. It is surely a sadder sight to see a young man or a young woman, well equipped with a good body but without any really great purpose in life."

And if you stop to think of it, you will see that to have a great purpose has been a characteristic of great men and great women. I often like to think of Wendell Phillips—a youth of excellent parentage, of broad and deep training, of great oratorical powers, waiting in his law office in Boston. And one day there was a massacre in the streets of Boston; then a client walked into Phillips' office. It was humanity. Humanity came to get Phillips to plead its cause; and from that day to the day of his death, he was humanity's advocate. Often the hearts and homes of those that had been his friends were closed to him. Now and then he was cheered and encouraged by his friends; but again and again he was hissed and howled at by the mob. A man less strong than he might have been driven from his great purpose; but he loved humanity. To uplift humanity—that was the great purpose that got hold of this young man's life, that controlled it. That was the purpose that governed and inspired him whether he was fighting for the freedom of the negro, the rights of women, or the uplifting of the drunkard. "Like the great Apostle preaching Christ," says George William Fox, "he knew only humanity and humanity crucified." We do not all believe that the judgment of Wendell Phillips was always sound but we can not but admire his loyalty to a great purpose. You can recall other great men, and great women, too, whose lives have been controlled by a great purpose."

A great purpose also has a great keeping power. A mother whose son was about to enter college once asked me if I could give her some helpful suggestions. I could think of nothing better to say to her than to say: "If possible have your son go into college with a purpose. Encourage him to do his very best in something. If he is good in mathematics, let him try for the mathematical prize; if he is good in Latin, let him try to excel in that. Whether he get the prize may from your point of view matter very little. But what a lay needs to have in college is a purpose, for that will often keep him in the right." And it might be added that not only the college boy but every boy and every girl, indeed every person needs to have a great purpose, for that will often keep him from the wrong.

But perhaps some of you are saying: "Oh, yes, I know all that. I know that great men and great women have been alive with a great purpose; and I know that to have a great purpose is to enrich my life. But, oh dear, my life is so made up of a round of little duties, I am hemmed in so by difficulties, my days are so full of drudgery, that it seems as if there was no chance for me to play an heroic part, to achieve a great purpose. This, I am sure, is a mood that almost every one is liable to be in at times. And this is just the point that I wish to make. It is just here that Christ meets us. He walks along the shore of the little sea where we are fishing and he says to us as he said to those rough old fishermen in the days of yore, 'Come, follow me; and I will put a great purpose into your life. Come, follow me; and I will make you to become in the very best sense fishers of men.' And then it is the miracle is wrought. Then the merest drudgery takes on a new meaning and becomes divine."

I would that through all your days there might be a great purpose, the Christian purpose, urging you on to a broader and better life.

UNIVERSALISTS

MEET AT BANGOR

The 84th Maine Universalist Convention met in Bangor, June 2nd and 3rd with a large attendance and most interesting and profitable meetings. The new Universalist church was dedicated on the evening of the 2nd.

The church was destroyed in the great fire of April 30, 1911, and as rebuilt is a substantial and handsome edifice and Bangor Universalists have reason to be proud of their spacious auditorium, with its bright, cheerful colors, its clusters of electric lights, its rich furnishings, its great organ—the whole crowned and dignified by fine memorial windows. It was a well arranged and well executed program, and the dedicatory sermon preached by the Rev. James F. Albion, D. D., of Portland, was a most notable one, heart-rending, broadly illuminating, of marked literary excellence, and continuously interesting. It touched briefly upon the honored history of the old church, and upon the fine new edifice which, thanks to enterprise and courage, has risen in its place. "A great work faces the church," said Dr. Albion. "We are on the threshold of a great spiritual awakening—the hearts and minds, the common sense and judgment of men is going to turn to this great institution again as in the past and realize that here is the mightiest agency for the advancement of the kingdom of righteousness. This splendid church, risen from the ashes of your great conflagration, concrete evidence of your faith, courage and devotion, has a field of endeavor and an open door of opportunity in your enterprising, progressive city that should appeal to every talent, every energy of every member in its fellowship."

Rev. F. C. Leining of Biddeford led the conference meeting of Personal Evangelism which opened Tuesday morning's session. The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by Hon. G. E. Fogg, the President, who presided during the order of exercises. After the opening prayer by Rev. A. N. Blackford of Machias, the address of welcome was delivered by Rev. Ashley A. Smith, pastor of the Bangor Universalist Church. The address of President Fogg was an interesting document, covering all branches of church activity.

Rev. Asa M. Bradley of Portland read the report of the executive board and the superintendent of churches. During the year there has been steady work and healthy growth with the majority of the Maine parishes. There have been large accessions to membership. There is increasing interest in the missionary enterprises of the church, and he would call attention to the fact that these churches that do the most for others are best supported in their local needs.

And has been given to a few parishes, not as many as would have been wished, nor to as many as were in need. The convention has found it necessary to borrow money, paying interest thereon, in order that the obligations be met, a practice that is to be deprecated.

The report of the fellowship committee showed that four ministers were received on transfer during the year. F. C. Leining, Biddeford; R. A. Hersey, Caribou; O. Taudberg, Brunswick; A. M. Bradley, State Superintendent, Portland. These were transfers from the State of A. J. Weaver, A. M. Smith, Isabella P. McNeil. Rev. J. P. Steele of Hallowell has died. The roll now contains 52 names of members in fellowship, one levitiate, and one lay preacher. Mr. C. Ward has been transferred to Massachusetts from Norway. Reports from the Sunday School Association, Y. P. R. U., and other transfers were made, and all were found to be in a flourishing condition. At the afternoon session Rev. R. P. Johnson of Auburn spoke on the "Place and Function of the Modern Church," and Dr. C. A. Hayden of Oakland delivered an address on "The Call of the World."

At the concluding session Wednesday a motion to recommend that the convention put itself on record as favoring into your life. Come, follow me; and I will make you to become in the very best sense fishers of men." And then it is the miracle is wrought. Then the merest drudgery takes on a new meaning and becomes divine."

I would that through all your days there might be a great purpose, the Christian purpose, urging you on to a broader and better life.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

AT GOULD'S ACADEMY

Once every year all Bethel folk are moved by a common interest. More than one who have seen and felt this high tide of feeling may have wished that oftener than once a year we might be so drawn together by the manifestation of a common sympathy and enthusiasm. But at least we are sure of this heart warming process each springtime when comes the graduation at Gould's Academy. Every thing then dates, "Before—or After—Graduation." All plans centre about this one point. Odeon Hall is crowded early in the afternoon of Graduation Day by an eager, expectant, sympathetic throng. It is the nearest we ever come in our staid New England village life to the kind of gathering in which European peoples so much delight. Everybody is wishing favoring winds to happy ports for these young voyagers setting sail to-day. And with it all there is the touch of pathos with which the sight of brave young things standing before the gates of new endeavor always brings. Truly it is a blessed experience for us all, which raises us for the time at least—perhaps for all time—to higher, broader levels of sympathy and comprehension.

The stage this year was effective with the usual beautiful evergreen background for the motto, "Vincit qui laborat," and banked with ferns, keeping the decorations within the class colors, green and white. While one waits one looks at the gay, silken banners on the walls, one for each class since 1899, and what a host of association the sight of them arouses! Each one is hung about with tender memories.

Now come marching in with beautiful precision the scholars of today, marshaled by Harold Chandler, '13, each class led by its banner, which shall one day too hang upon the wall and call forth its train of memories.

Pow, it seems, can look unmoved up on the young procession which ushers the Senior class, about which all interests centre. The class of 1913 is the largest class ever graduated, numbering twenty-four. It has the reputation of being an unusually fine class. It has maintained an unusually high average of scholarship. One thing worthy of mention is that its valedictorian is its youngest member, a young girl of very marked ability and character, from whom we expect high achievements in the future. It is also interesting to know that one of the younger members, Miss Marsden, has not missed a single recitation in the four years' course. We would like to say, Ah, and once more, From these learn what the rest are, and venture to do it.

SUDDEN DEATH
OF T. G. LARY.

Mr. T. G. Lary, one of Glend's most respected citizens, died at the Central Maine Hospital in Lewiston, Tuesday morning, June 11th. He has been in failing health for several years and was taken to the hospital last Saturday.

Funeral services will be held at his home in Glend at 12.30 Thursday afternoon.

A more extended account will be given next week.

That smile on us now through fast gathering tears.

CHORUS.
Classmates, the future is bright now before us,
God in his goodness is leading us on.
His loving kindness will ever shine o'er us,
Light'ning the shadows when sunlight is gone.

Goodbye to the days we are leaving forever,
The hearts and the hands that have guided us long,
To those who have helped us in every endeavor,
Tribute we pay, for this, our farewell song.

Classmates, when all our hard lessons are ended,
Learned in the hard school of our lives "Little White,"
May we once again, in a long, glad vacation,
Stand side by side in the light of Heaven's smile.

CHORUS.
Classmates, the future is bright now before us,
God in his goodness will still lead us on.
May his loving kindness forever be over us,
Our dear old school after we, too, are gone.

Florence Chapman was flower girl. All the parts were admirably taken, in a manner that gave great satisfaction. The more serious parts were remarkably well sustained. Perhaps, because the Latin Salutatory might so easily be rendered in a meaningless manner, it may be allowable to refer particularly to the unusual finish and ease which Mr. Valentine attained, the expression he threw into his difficult part, and the skilled way in which he was able to make the beauty of the Latin words apparent. In the lighter parts there is always much gay, good humored interest on the part of the

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Pleasant Reveries—A Column
Dedicated to Tired Mothers
as they Join the Home
Circle at Evening Tide.

We are put into this world to make it better, and we must be about our business.—Gen. Armstrong.

Two ears and but a single tongue.
By nature's laws by man belong.
The lesson she would teach is clear—
Repeat but half of what you hear.

Give me good work to do, that I may forget myself and find peace in doing it for thee. Though I am poor, send me to carry some gift to those who are poorer, some cheer to those who are more lonely.

—Henry Van Dyke.

DO'S AND DON'TS ANENT RESPONSIBILITY.

Don't bring your child up to shrink the little responsibilities that are sure to fall to him early in life.

Don't let him feel that when you tell him to gather up his playthings at night, if he sneaks away, leaving them scattered, you will gather them up for him, and that will be the end of the matter.

Don't let him form the habit of wantonly ill-using his clothing by throwing it on the floor, or kicking it into corners when discarded. Let him understand how to put it on and take it off without thoughtlessly and impatiently ripping off buttons and buttons for mother's tired fingers to replace.

Don't let boy and girl feel that they have no responsibility to the household—its order, its harmony, its happiness.

Don't labor like dogs to support your family, your parents, and then allow your child to leave school, and sit about the house in idleness. You will be laying the foundation of a character that will spoil not only the life of its possessor, but perhaps the lives of many others with which it may come in contact.

Don't let your growing boy, emerging into manhood, feel that he has a right to look to you for money, good mother, unless you are educating him in college to some purpose. Compel the boy who will not take education to go to work, and earn his own way; if you let him shirk both, and give all of his days to his baseball team, he is going to look upon women in his later manhood, as he looks upon you now, as a fruitful source of financial supply. Don't you, father of this son, indulge a happy-go-lucky propensity to idle when the mood shall seize you, leading a partially irresponsible life, and allowing wife and daughter to earn the deficit. Your son is going to observe you, and accumulate your method of working the game. If he marries, and becomes the father of a son, perpetuating your proud race, he is going to be utterly lacking in that sense of responsibility to his family which belongs in the making of stalwart manhood.

Don't good mother, accept in smiling, acquiescent silence any lot which the good-natured, but none the less selfishness of the man of the household may thrust upon you. Son, and perhaps daughter too, will get it into their heads that mother is made of iron endurance, and that she has no physical limitations, and no sensibilities, and they will probably follow father's example in their treatment of you.

Don't think that by saving your children from knowledge of the difficult truths of life, by giving yourself infinite pains that they shall know nothing but happiness, by making infinite sacrifices that they shall miss nothing—that you are doing well for them. You are developing grafters upon the happiness and rights of others beyond the home fold.

Don't let your child grow up without a sense of his responsibility toward his parents—his obligation to protect and take care of those in their later years who have provided for him in his days of helplessness.

Don't let your boy grow up without a sense of his responsibility toward girls and women, that he shall protect and respect them, rather than prey upon them.

Teach him to shoulder his own responsibilities, as a man should, as to finances and as to his deeds, that he will not be tempted by bombast nor by clever trickery to try to cloud the lens of the true eyes that love and are able to see through every ruse, because, perhaps, they love, even as you, O mother.

Train your daughter so that her splendid womanhood will assert itself in wisdom, courage, endurance, charm and a joyous spirit in her assumption of all responsibilities that may come to her in her life beside her mate.

Train them both so that they be not blinded by egotism to their true relations in life, to their personal responsibilities, to the consequences of selfish deeds, nor to the things worth striving Parents, Read this Letter!

I have a letter from a prominent Maine clergyman in regard to a sickness of one of his children from which I quote as follows: "Our two-year-old baby was very sick at two different times and we came near losing her. We had the best doctors, but they did not know what the trouble was. In the first sickness she had high fever for several days, and the doctor said it acted like scarlet fever, but as there were no other cases he did not think it could be. Afterwards she broke out in a rash all over her body. The last sickness was similar and the doctor was puzzled. She was very nervous and we feared we would lose her. Your Dr. True's Elixir was recommended, and after two days' use she passed several worms from two to three inches in length and is now well and strong and sleeps at night without fretting, tossing and starting in a fright as she did formerly."

I will be glad to furnish this clergyman's name and address to anyone who cares to write to me.

N.B.—True's Elixir is the best known remedy for all stomach and bowel troubles. Purely vegetable, pleasant to take and entirely harmless. Expels stomach worms and pinworms. All dealers, 35c; 50c; $1.00. Yours for better health.

HOME HELPS.

Lace continually cleaned with gasoline or naphtha will turn yellow quickly, says the Chicago Journal. To make velvet collars look like new, rub briskly with alcohol. This cuts all the grease and removes every particle of dirt.

If you wish to iron your clothes immediately after you sprinkle them, try dampening them with boiling water, says the Washington Herald. Roll them out well, and iron with a hot iron.

For vinegar, save all peelings from fruit; boil in enough water to cover, strain and set aside unsealed to ferment. Rinse out all emptied jars and pour rinsing into the vinegar jug. The vinegar will be a fine amber color.

A good way to use up cheese that has become dry is to grate it, add a piece of butter, and cream if you have it; to moisten it stir with a fork until it becomes creamy and you will have something delicious. If you do not have cream, milk will do.

When I air my room, to keep the curtains from blowing out the window, I place lead or iron weights in the corners, writes a contributor to the New York Press. This iron washers are good, as they are not heavy enough to make the curtain sag. They may be covered with the same material and placed in either the hem or corners.

RUMFORD.

On Thursday morning about 3 o'clock a fire alarm was rung in from Main street. Upon further investigation it was found that a small flame issuing from the Packard Block. This had been discovered by a milk man as he was making his early morning rounds. The fire seemed to be located in the basement of the building in a pile of old carpeting. How it started is unknown. Several theories are held but nothing so far has been discovered. The fire department responded to their call at once and did efficient work. The building was damaged only a very little. W. S. Grommett's stock was smoked somewhat, and that of Woodard's a little, but all is amply covered by insurance. Chas. Atwood is spending a week at home from his studies at the University of Maine. Next week he will go back to complete his final examinations.

L. W. Blanchard and wife took an automobile trip to Augusta, Tuesday. The Knights of Pythians and Pythian Sisters attended church in a body at the Methodist church Sunday, and listened to a sermon preached by Rev. Wm. T. Carter to them.

R. T. Parker went to Portland, Friday, to meet his sister, Miss Rachel Parker, of Providence, R. I., who is to spend the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Parker at the Rangleys Lakes.

Rev. A. S. Bradley preached at the Universalist church on Sunday both afternoon and evening, and is in hopes to place a minister in charge of the parish in a short time.

The Ladies' Bible Class of the Methodist church enjoyed a picnic at the Bartlett farm at Rumford Center, Saturday. Chas. H. Abbott came for the ladies in the morning in a hay rack and took them to their destination.

Friday night at about 3:30 o'clock a fire alarm was rung in from the box near the Clark Foundry Co. The fire company responded as quickly as possible, but upon their arrival the foundry building was enveloped in flames and the only thing they could do was to put all of their efforts on saving the machine shop nearby, which they did and were able to save this. The watchman was the first person to discover the blaze; he noticed a small amount of smoke between the walls and the stack, and immediately called the department. The foundry and contents were covered by insurance, and as soon as this matter is adjusted reconstruction will begin. This is the third time the foundry has burned. It is the plan of the directors to construct a building of some other material than wood, so that it may be nearer fire-proof.

THE WATER CURE

Few People Drink Enough Water to maintain the proper amount of fluid in the system, to eliminate through the bowels and kidneys the waste products of the body. If drinking a glass upon rising and between meals does not keep your bowels active and digestion good, remember the old reliable "L. F." Atwood's Medicine has been successfully used for sixty years. Read this letter:

"I used to be subject to severe attacks of bilious and sick headaches, but if I feel one coming on, I take the 'L. F.' Atwood's Medicine. It helps me every time. I would as soon be without water in the house as 'L. F.' Atwood's Medicine."

HOG CHOLERA

Threatening the Swine Industry of Our State.

Free Hog Cholera Serum Obtainable From Live Stock Commissioner.

The spread of hog cholera threatens to threaten the hog industry in Maine, and the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, realizing the vast amount of money that is invested in this business by swine breeders and farmers, is taking an active part in the efforts to suppress this plague and now recommends and urges the use of hog cholera serum as the best means to prevent the spread and for the cure of hog cholera.

Hog cholera serum is the dehydrated blood or serum of blood obtained from hogs highly immunized by injections of hog cholera virus. One-half of 1 per cent. of carbolic acid is added to prevent decomposition. As the carbolic serum is free from bacteria, no bad effects, such as local abscesses and septicemia will result, unless infection is introduced in making injection, so it is important that the serum be properly administered.

Many hog breeders in Maine have suffered heavy losses for the last two years from animals dying from hog cholera. The serum treatment, which

EXPERIENCE OF MOTHERHOOD

Advice to Expectant Mothers

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once children there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

FACTS AND FICTION

Experiences of Bethel Citizens Are Easily Proven to be Facts.

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Bethel is true. Read it and compare evidence from Bethel people with testimony of strangers living so far away you cannot investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Bethel endorse Doan's Kidney Pills.

Arthur Buxton, shoemaker, Mill Hill, Bethel, Me., says: "My kidneys were disordered for quite awhile. I suffered from pains across the small of my back and had dizzy spells. A friend had used Doan's Kidney Pills with fine results and I tried them. The results were satisfactory. I was cured in a short time. It is a pleasure for me to confirm what I said about Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago when I publicly recommended them."

is now being introduced in Maine, has been used extensively in the Western states with most excellent results. Many of these Western states, where hog raising is a very important industry, manufacture their own serum at the state laboratories and it is dispensed at cost price to the veterinarians. There is no equipment in the department of agriculture of Maine to manufacture the serum, so it has been necessary to purchase it direct from the manufacturers.

Dr. A. Joly of Waterville, sanitary live stock commissioner of Maine, proposes to furnish free of cost, hog cholera serum to those breeders and farmers who may have infected herds, in order to assist in controlling any outbreaks that might arise in any part of the State, provided the administration of the serum be made by a competent veterinarian, for unless the infection is made under sanitary conditions, infection is likely to take place.

Maine has taken a step in advance of other states in this respect, realizing as she does, the importance of her animal industry. The only cost then to the owner of the stock will be for the services of the veterinarian for the administration of the serum. The serum may be obtained by applying to Dr. A. Joly, live stock commissioner, Waterville.

Three herds are now quarantined in the State and under treatment. Several bad cases of hog cholera have recently been treated with the serum and 60 per cent. have recovered. All farmers and breeders are cautioned that when sickness is found in a herd a competent veterinarian should at once be called in and the case or cases diagnosed. The veterinarians, if they find the case to be hog cholera, will apply to Dr. Joly for the serum, which will be furnished by the State, free of charge.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; this tube is not a canal for drainage, which is a common error, it is a tube which is closed at both ends, and which is the cause of the inflammation. Alfred Austin, British poet-laureate since 1896, died June 2nd, at the age of 77. Alfred Austin besides being a poet was a barrister, a critic, a novelist, a war correspondent and a political writer. He published his first poem anonymously at the age of 18, before he had taken his degree at London university. Although he was a lawyer he never practiced that profession. He was a newspaper correspondent in Rome for many years and he followed the operations of the China-Russia war. He was with the headquarters of the Russian army. The writings were very patriotic. In one poem of recent date he called attention to the unpreparedness of the British army for war and in another he eulogized the achievements of the British navy. In 1911 he issued his autobiography. The greater part of his poetical work was published between the years 1881 and 1890, including Savonarola, Pines of Lorraine and English Lyrics. The poet laureate died at his home, Swinford Old Manor, Ashford Kent, where he had been lying ill for some time.

At a meeting of the Aroostook County Progressive committee at Presque Isle, Tuesday, resolutions were passed that the sentiment of the committee was to maintain a district party organization for the campaign of 1914. Speeches were made by Roland E. Clark of Houlton, Irving E. Turner of Portland, chairman of the State Progressive Committee; Hon. Carl E. Milliken and William W. Sewall of Island Falls, Hon. H. P. Gardner of Patten and Herbert T. Powers of Fort Fairfield.

It is a fact that does not seem to be generally known that there are stringent health laws in the state of Maine and they can be enforced, with penalties, if not observed. Members of the Anti Tuberculosis association have discovered rather a lax observance of such laws and a disposition to dodge work and responsibility under them. This is not to be allowed to go on and cannot be allowed to go on with safety to the community. It is not only a duty but a measure of safety to everyone to see that the provisions of the law are lived up to, for the disease tuberculosis is recognized as an infectious and communicable disease and persons suffering from it, houses they occupy and clothing, etc., used by them, should be carefully looked after, otherwise the disease will spread.

The total resources and liabilities of the savings banks in Maine, April 26, 1913, were $104,129,310.14 each, an increase since October 26, 1912 of about $2,000,000, says the semi-annual report of the State Bank commissioner. The increase of liabilities and resources of the State Bank commissioner between Oct. 26, 1912 and April 26, 1913 is about $2,000,000 and the increase in the resources of the Loan and Building associations is about $70,000. The total increase in liabilities and resources of all three is $4,070,000.02. The cash resources of savings banks is $1,851,873.30, and of Trust and banking companies, $3,529,859.07 while that of the Loan and Building associations amount to $138,475.21.

Harold H. Murchie of Augusta, formerly of Calais, has been appointed assistant attorney general by Atty. Gen. Scott Wilson in compliance with the act passed by the last legislature restoring that office which was abolished by the 75th legislature in 1911. The appointment will take effect at midnight, July 1. Mr. Murchie is well qualified to perform the duties of the office. Harold H. Murchie was born in Calais, in 1893, the son of George A. and Cora Murchie. His father has for many years been prominently identified with the Republican party; served in both branches of the legislature and was for two terms a member of the executive council. Young Murchie was educated in the public schools and graduated from the high school in 1909. The following year he entered Dartmouth college and from there went to Harvard Law school from which he graduated in 1912. He came to Augusta in October, 1912, and opened a law office. Other candidates for the position were Hon. Edward F. Gould of North Berwick, a former member of the senate, and George H. Bassett, Esq., member of the law firm of Bassett & Bassett of Augusta.

Nearly 10 per cent. of the inmates of the National Soldiers' Home at Togus are veterans of the Spanish-American war or served in the Philippines, according to Colonel John T. Richards, the governor of the home, in a statement issued recently. The health of the inmates of this branch home, considering the advanced age of 90 per cent. of them, is very good, the governor declares. It will be appreciated that this being the oldest of all the national homes, the average age of the members is high. Notwithstanding this fact the death rate, as compared with other homes, is small. Among recent improvements which summer visitors to the reservation will recognize this year are the sun dial, built at a cost of $64.10, and the giant Oregon flag pole, which was set up at a cost of only $1100.47, it is said. New walks are being laid out and the grounds look more beautiful than ever. Hundreds of visitors are visiting the reservation since the warm weather arrived.

A Lady's Comment
On Medicine and Religion

The following letter is from a lady whose name I am not at liberty to use. If I should mention her name she would be known by almost every reader. She writes in part:

"Your article entitled 'Medicine and Religion' has been read and re-read by me many times. It seems to me that the article contains the substance of all that has been said about Christian Science, new thought, suggestive therapeutics and other forms of mental healing."

"I am very much pleased to observe that you are putting out into the world such useful literature. It will do untold good, without doubt; not only for those who take medicine, but for those who try to get along without taking medicine. Your article is terse, to the point, and will be read by thousands."

"Medicine and religion have always been very closely associated. Only in very recent years have the two been regarded as separate professions. I am glad you brought this out so clearly. The tendency of to-day is strongly in the direction of medicine and religion coming back together again. With your immense facilities for spreading useful information I am sure you will greatly assist the progress of the times in sending out broadcast such articles. I want you to know that your efforts are appreciated."

"As to Peruna, I have nothing to say. I very seldom make use of any medicine. But I assure you that your article has so enthralled me with the good advice it contains that if I have any need for medicine I shall certainly buy a bottle of Peruna. I shall not neglect to recommend it to others also."

Fletcher, Augusta. Division delegates: Orrin G. Ricker, Augusta; F. W. Reed, South China; Arthur W. Marsh, Rockland. It was voted to have a committee appointed to attend the dedication of the monument to Past National Commander, Frank W. Merrill at Mattapan, Mass., June 15.

The officers, with the exception of the fourth and fifth vice presidents, were re-elected at the closing session of the Maine Federation of Labor. They included Charles O. Bels of Auburn, the president; James A. O'Rourke of Portland, first vice president; P. H. Fitzgerald of Augusta, Henry M. Donnelly of Augusta secretary; and Roscoe Eddy of Bar Harbor, chairman of legislative committee. The new vice presidents are Alexander J. Davitt of Millinocket and John F. Russell of Augusta. The next convention will be held at Waterville next June.

LOCAL HISTORY.

ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.

The quietness of our quiet town has lately been not a little disturbed by what is supposed to be an elopement—a young lady the only daughter of a gentleman who was for several years landlord of one of the hotels of our city (the Carro House) is missing with bag and baggage, also the fine horse and carriage of her father's. Where she has gone is not known. In the evening she was at home as usual. In the morning the bird had flown, and though several days have elapsed and diligent search been made, no trace of her has as yet been found. What is a little remarkable, a clever goodnatured man of 60 years became missing at the same time and the story goes that he is the gay Lothario of the young damsel and has taken her off in her father's carriage to parts unknown. She had never been allowed to go into company much for the reason that she was not considered bright—yet she seems to have outwitted them all. The old lover has left behind a wife and some ten children. The affair has been most thoroughly managed, no one having had the slightest suspicion of any intimacy between the parties, or of an elopement being contemplated.

Andover, Oxford Co., May 19, 1913. The "Carro House" stood in Portland where the Carro Back building is now today, formerly site of Middle street a few steps westerly of the Post Office, originally the home place of Commodore Perle, whose name is perpetuated by the appearance of the Perle House. It was of wood and destroyed by the great fire of 1826.

The item appearing next below is clipped from a journal that flourished in Portland more than a half century ago, the trading as well as the rest of it.

EDITING A NEWSPAPER.

The following satirical remarks upon the subject of editing a newspaper were made by the Lyon News.

"We never could see the value of the least which is so often made by papers and magazines, that so large a portion of their pages is occupied with original material. Their originality is too often maintained at the expense of work. The best exchanges of our acquaintance are by no means those which have the greatest amount of 'original' matter. There is more editorial tact and talent required to make proper and practical selections, than is put in expenditure in the production of the varying original papers who seem to regard originality as the only requisite, for a good paper."

Medical. A good newspaper is always dependent upon resources other than its own, and the boast of a periodical that it is entirely original, is too often the boast of a library, if it should claim to have the production of only one author."

This may serve as an aid when the new editor of the Citizen who, it is said, is a young man, may hear the editor's cry from the composing room—"more editorial copy"—and his supply short, having been out late the night before, and is obliged to use selections. And here is something from the same source that will please if it does not really instruct upon the question of refinement in writing as follows:

VULGAR.

If I had a donkey as wouldn't go, Do you think I'd wallop him—not no!

I'd give him some corn and cry gee woe!

REFINED.

If I had an animal averse to speed, Do you think I'd chastise him—not, indeed!

I'd give him some oats and cry proceed!

Go on, Edward.

And here is another specimen of old fashioned editorial wit.

Maiden, that sweet kiss

You caught me stealing,

Filled my soul with bliss!

Aye! extatic feeling—

Filled my heart with love

So warm I fear 'twill burn it.

Maiden, what must I do?

Pray let me return it!

Here are four specimens from four editors:

Beautiful is the love, and sweet the kiss of a sister; but if you haven't a sister handy, try your cousin—it isn't much worse.

"If you haven't a cousin of your own, try somebody else's—there's no difference."

Better still; try your sweetheart at once.

Jem says, the best one of all is one's own wife—perhaps he is a little old-fashioned."

And this is what a young maiden sent a bachelor editor:

"Take a little wife,

The prettier the better;

Pat her cheek, and when

She looks to kiss you—let her."

It was in the year of 1830, a person now residing in Bethel was upon the 5th day of February a clerk in a grocery store at Andover, Me., where the post office was installed that a letter was mailed addressed as follows:

"I've bought my stamp and stuck it on,

My part of the contract being done,

If Uncle Samuel don't bless,

He'll take this written

To Portland, Maine,

And hand it to Mrs. J. B. Crane."

Perhaps the one thus addressed if still in the flesh, would like to tell the readers of the Citizen if the sender met with success as a poet, and give an account of both the sender and receiver.

Unified management means convenience and comfort to the traveler.
